A Note From Pastor Andrew

Oh my goodness, winter is here. It is cold out there. This past Sunday I was sure the attendance was going to be light, and granted there were a few people who informed me via text they wouldn't be in church, but we were blessed to have several of you brave the weather to come to worship. Winter can be treacherous. I love winter. I think it's beautiful, and many of you keep reminding me how much I love it, with a bit of sarcasm mixed in there I think, but winter can be scary. Especially on the roads. Perhaps not so much us, but the other person. I was almost hit twice the other day. I keep waiting for someone to slide into a car in the church parking lot as they try to balance ice cream and the steering wheel. So, all of this said, be careful out there. Continue to bring the light of Christ to everyone you meet, and remember you've been called by name to be a child of God. Join us for worship on Thursday or Sunday and marvel at the wonder of God's creation. Be it in a snowflake, the smile of a passing driver, or even the glory that is yourself, God's love trumps all.
